Tribeca, from Texas, for The Music Thing

Anna Grace Fleet found songwriting to be her truest form of therapy, and she leaned into it early. She got her start on her dad’s Yamaha DD-55, looping the built-in backing tracks and writing songs over them for hours.

In September 2024, she moved to New York City with two goals: to build a band and to build a community. Her single “Comes Home” captured that chapter—an ode to getting through winter, and to the people who helped carry her through it.

Fleet and the Foo Fighters Sharing NYC’s Spotlight Tonight

When the Foo Fighters dropped their album last week, Fleet fans had a feeling this kind of moment was coming. Then the band tweeted a Thursday night pop-up at Irving Hall - $30 tickets, first come - and suddenly it was obvious: one of those rare, all-time New York rock nights was on deck. If you can’t make Foo Fighters, queue them up on Spotify. Fleet is at Alphaville tonight.
